Fear of China's might clouds Asian summit

WARRIOR—Behind the official handshakes and smiles at this week's 15-nation Asian summit in Vietnam, China's increasingly assertive behavior means the region will be in an apprehensive mood, analysts say.

President Aquino is among the leaders attending the summit, which starts on Thursday. He is scheduled to leave Friday.

4,000 incumbents in today's barangay polls face ouster

By Jocelyn R. Uy

A CLUTTER is hanging over the candidacy of over 4,000 barangay captains seeking reelection for the sixth time as the country holds barangay and Sangguniang Pambansa (SP) elections today.

The Commission on Elections (Comelec) yesterday announced that it would file disqualification cases against barangay candidates whose names were on the list of "incumbents."

The Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG) had provided the poll body.

The DILG inventory has identified 4,400 barangay captains nationwide who were found to have been third or fourth terms but are still seeking reelection. Under the law governing the synchronized barangay and SP elections, no elected village official can serve for more than three terms.

"Our election officers are now checking the records against the list of incumbents in their respective jurisdictions," Comelec spokesperson Aaron Arnesen said at yesterday's press briefing in Intramuros, Manila.

"And if there are matches, the Comelec law department will right away file disqualification cases against those people," Arnesen said.

Appropriately, criminal charges—perjury and material misrepresentation—shall also be filed against these candidates, he said.

The list provided by the DILG has been distributed to all the election officers nationwide on Saturday for validation. In a last-minute move, the Comelec last night decided to postpone the elections in Barangays San Isidro and San Juan in Pangasinan to Tuesday because floods spawned by Super typhoon "Dante" have not subsided.

Another P-Noy EO challenged

Order suspending exec perks assailed

By Marlon Ramon

PRESIDENT AQUINO is headed for yet another legal battle at the Supreme Court.

A lawyer of Philippine Health Insurance Corp. (PhilHealth) in Pasay City has asked the tribunal to declare as unconstitutional Mr. Aquino's order suspending all allowances, bonuses and incentives of officials of government-owned and controlled corporations (GOCCs), and government financial institutions (GFIs).

Mr. Aquino stopped raises in the salaries and other benefits of board members, executives and regular employees named in the Salary Standardization Law when he issued Executive Order No. 7 last month.

In a petition for annulment and prohibition, Atty. Galido argued that the President was flouting his signing EO 7 which, he said, "is null and void for lack of legal basis."

It was the third time the President was challenged before the high court for issuing an executive order. (See "What went wrong" on Page A10.)

In his petition, Galido said the issuance of EO 7 infringed on the legislative powers of the Senate and the House of Representatives since the order "is by substance a law."

"(The order) is a derogation of congressional prerogative and is therefore unconstitutional," Galido said in his petition dated Oct. 22.

He said the order should be declared "invalid and unconstitutional for being ultra vires, null and void."

Recto: Cut number of Edsa buses by half

By GRC, Cebucom.ph

CUTTING HALF the number of public buses on EDSA (Diplomats before buses started) will ease traffic in Metro Manila's main artery and lower volume of cars idling along the route.

With this proposal, Sen. Ralph Recto has asked Metro Manila Development Authority (MMDA) Chair Francis Tolentino to lower his traffic 'cork' plan along EDSA on buses that, according to a World Bank study, had noxious air beyond the speed of the freeways.

Buses said to drive were roughly 7,000 public utility buses plying the EDSA route, mostly by 'volunteer' busmen, mostly buses traveling outside their designated way. The number is more than four times the ideal daily volume of 1,600 buses suggested by the World Bank.

The MMDA had proposed to remove the odd-numbered voluntary suburban program for private operators on EDSA as an end to half the volume of traffic in the busy 24-kilometer corridor.

Under the program, vehicles whose license plate digits end in odd numbers are off limits to EDSA on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, while those whose digits end in even numbers are limited to Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.

The scheme will run as the same time as the current status for riding scheme where cars are limited one day in a week in major thoroughfares, including EDSA.

"We put down by half the current volume, we cut down traffic and more pollution along EDSA," Recto said.

The senator said that limiting the number of buses on EDSA could have commuters to patronize the Metro Rail Transit (MRT) 3, which was getting P7.4 billion in subsidies due to its failure to hit a projected volume of 600,000 riders a day. The MMR currently carries between 414,000 and 500,000 passengers a day.

Why exercise isn't enough to give you the results you want

A series of strenuous, exhausting workouts. The frustrating part is that you don't often get the results you want. A Time magazine article reveals why exercise doesn't always keep the pounds off.

1 THE HUNGER STIMULUS PROBLEM: It's true that one must burn calories to lose weight and exercise helps you burn calories but the problem is exercise also stimulates hunger. That causes us to eat more, which in turn can negate weight loss benefits we've just earned. Fatigue, in other words, isn't necessarily helping us lose weight. It may even be making it harder.

2 THE COMPENSATION PROBLEM: A study revealed that women who exercised with a trainer several days a week for 6 months did not lose significantly more weight than women who were told to maintain their usual physical-activity routines. Whether because exercise made people hungry or they wanted to reward themselves for health, most of the women who exercised ate more than they did before they started the experiment. Or they compensated in another way, by moving around a lot less than usual after they got home.

BALLOT boxes are brought to Cebu's main Elementary School in Cebu City for today's political exercise.

4,000 incumbents in today's barangay polls face ouster

From people who approved the request of municipal officials to defer the elections in the two barangays because most of their residents were still in overseas country, the local government would make it impossible for them to go to their polling stations.

The elections today are expected to draw 573,000 elective voters to 42,023 barangays across the country.

Barangay positions are to be filled in each barangay—eight in the largest, usually town barangay and seven each of smaller ones and eight in the 10 smallest (50 or fewer households).

More than 50 million Filipinos (18 and above) are eligible to vote in the barangay election and 2.46 million (18 to 17 years old) in the Sanggunian election building.

Barangays are authorized by law to obtain some P20 million for local economic development projects and services under the 1995 Local Government Code. They have an ex-ante budget to allocate, approve delivery of basic services and some neighborhood.

Under the law, the barangay is a local government, not a political subdivision, and the election of barangay officials is a political process.

Should these "multiple terms" residents win in the elections, the Commission will accept the proclamation until they have completed the process of clearing their names.

Interim official

If the suspension of proclamation is not lifted by Nov. 30, the Commission will order the OLC to appoint and install officials to take the place of the winning candidates, whose names had not yet been cleared, however.

It said that as of 2 p.m., preventing the delivery of election paraphernalia to election sites was close to 100 percent.

"We are very optimistic that we will have regular elections in the whole country except for those areas affected by the recent typhoon," he said.

The OLC's spokesman said prepared contingency measures should be able to prompt the elections to start soon.

BY DANCING P13 million in additional funds to pay for leprosy. House leaders should not expect them looking their up, because in the Aquino administration, P13 million would fund cash transfer (CCT) program and P15 billion public-private partnership program (PPP) under the 2011 national budget.

"It should not be paid pro quo," says Miguel Ángel Neri Colmanero said by phone. "We will continue to battle the gangs even under whatever situation as long as the leaders continue."

Speaker Nicholas Belmont, Jr. has agreed to grant $1.2 million in total more tax proceeds to parish members and an additional $50 million in infrastructure funds to regular members, on top of the $70 million annual priority development funds starting next year, according to law.

Colson also maintained that both the GET and TSPF were being run approximately that way: "ethereal to corruption" and "no account to President Reagan's 'zero based budgeting' that seeks to justify expenditures to the hilt."

The House approved on several readings the FY-2001 trillion budget on Oct. 18, keeping the funds for the big-ticket OCT and PTFE latest despite attempts by several lawmakers to scallop portions for other uses.

Proposed realignments

The lawmakers haven't grown up, and hoped to introduce their proposed redesigns on the same, between now and when both the Senate and the House convene the biannual conference committee to work out their version.

Refugees enjoyed some parity but lawmakers' chance for additional O-6 million in infrastructure funds earlier granted to regular lawmakers, but said they could send themselves of P30-million in P10 million from the proceeds of the road user tax.

million is irrelevant for now, according to Calmes. "Whether they print it or not, we will continue to endorse any request for funding from local officials to commercial agencies. And we hope the agency will not look at discounts, and not on the endorsed," he said.

Perle (Lained) Burners

Abbasov says, "Walden Hills said that the party-line group had reported on right the $50 million and 750 million in stolen funds. 'Those are two forms of pork barrel,' he said by phone. 'We feel that pork barrel goes against what we've elected for, which is to eliminate pork barrel.'"

Bella believed that the demand for more development funds had been fueled by the discovery of former President and now Panagiotis Bero, Orestis Makedonidis-Agiropoulos's $1.2 billion "pink herd" in Fountain.

In Puerto Princesa City, Social Welfare Secretary Wilfredo Salinas defended on the way his department's P14 billion budget will pay for the G27 as well as other poverty alleviation programs of the Aquino administration.

"They [some commentators] think it is so big, but it is not. . . and we have to pass through the use of the needle to get it approved by Congress. I appeal to Congress to take it from the perspective of the poet—the Arab, the Yacht Race of Palestine, because if you take it from that perspective, it becomes so much less," Holman said during a mail stop on his way to his project.

Aspen's early this week took the floor during plenary deliberations in Congress to question the capacity of the DOWD to implement the OCT program with its rapid increase in the budget, even as she clarified that the program itself was launched by her administration.

Solomon said the scaling up of the program in Palestine would be funded under a grant from the US government's millennium challenge facility and would involve close to 20,000 families in 15 municipalities.

The Department of Public Works and Highways (DPWH) has lined up provincial road shows to launch the project throughout the country, with Palawan being the 5th region to receive the pro-

Religion and the RH bills

LET RH bill get religion in the RH bills because it is finally religious in its coming out of the Congress.

There are two classes in the Constitution dealing with religion: the non establishment clause and the free exercise clause.

The non establishment clause is a command which says that the state may not choose any religion as the dominant religion. Unconsciously, it is an often abused point out, this command is addressed to the state and not to its citizens.

The free exercise clause is a command which says that the government shall not make laws which shall burden the exercise of religion. It also means the freedom to act or not to act according to what one believes. And this freedom is related when one is a citizen that state California do not have a personal law from acting according to one's beliefs.

In our society, many people of good faith have had more autonomy on the matter of abortion in relation to the freedom of religion and in many states in the manner of conscience. This did not mean to force largely upon religious faith. The bill of California mandating, for instance, that only one person family planning is allowed, even if it is one person that state California do not have a personal law from acting according to one's beliefs.

In the manner, the government through the Department of Health, makes no distinction as to whether those who would and those who do not are Catholics or non-Catholics. We are assured by the President that President Obama is free to make a decision as to whether the bill is to be signed. The President's decision is to be made in accordance with the oath of office. The President's decision is to be made in accordance with the oath of office. The President's decision is to be made in accordance with the oath of office.

FOUNDING BOARD

Dr. Josephine G. Bernice, S.J.

According to the most books of the state are not established by the state but by the people. We would also add that the President is not a deity. Catholic teaching being Catholic teaching, for a pluralist society requires that government laws get the consent of the people not only in the manner of conscience but also in the manner of the majority law also according to the effective pool of the constitution of the citizens, including those belonging to minority religions. We find many a good Catholic President who is not a Catholic.

If understood, however, that since there is as yet no law in the subject, some local officials do not allow local officials to disagree with Congress (even).

In studying the bill, before to ask if it is a state provision which has the effect of requiring people to act against their religion or to act against their religion, I propose that we should ask if it is a state provision which has the effect of requiring people to act against their religion or to act against their religion. I propose that we should ask if it is a state provision which has the effect of requiring people to act against their religion or to act against their religion.

I also make mention of the requirement of act without faith, but education is a state's responsibility not as religious matter. Our Congressmen should the teaching of religion in children in public schools, but it is important that it be done only with the consent of parents. A similar respect for the freedom of parents to act against their religion in the reproductive health law. Our Congressmen are: "the natural and primary right and duty of parents in the raising of the child for their own benefit and the development of their character shall not be interfered with by the state."

Our Congressmen should not be interfered with by the state in the raising of the child for their own benefit and the development of their character shall not be interfered with by the state.

Baguio taps Japanese compost technology to end garbage crisis

CHICAGO CITY—In what may be the nation's capital's third attempt to end its garbage crisis, the newly formed City Development Council (CDC) approved on Wednesday the purchase of Japanese bio-composting technology to be used by Shawmut.

The CBC was formed to refine and approve the city's proposed $1.4-billion budget for 2012, which would give the city a new class of councillors.

00-00 tons of organic waste

Smuggling two units of the Environment of Recycling System (ERS) means that the two could process from compact 50 to 60 tons of organic waste each day, while residual trash could be collected by the ERS main factory as raw materials for backfilling operations on the existing landfill blocks, said Mayor Mauricio Domagan, who led the CEC meeting.

The HDB units are distributed by Fenchon Marketing, a subsidiary of the FPC Corp. of Japan, and Conchita Lacson, city environmental officer.

The quest runs on a special fermentation process that relies on microorganisms called "shimeji," according to a French sales presentation that was shown at the assembly.

The mulchmen have become the centerpiece of Ontonagon's solid waste management operations.

In 2000, the city started building 10 tonnes of garbage daily in a commercial landfill in Capas, Iloilo, when a group of villagers threatened the city's only dump, having bags of uncollected garbage on major city

4 arrested for bus bomb attack in Cotabato

COTABATO CITY—Police arrested four on Saturday night suspects in the bus-bomb attack in Manila, Sulu, Philippines, that killed 10 passengers and injured dozens others.

A raiding team, mostly agents of the police's Criminal Investigation and Detection Group (CIDG), captured four men at about 11 p.m. in Sharif Sulong Street in Barangay Baguio Heights here, according to police spokesman.

He said that the raiders were led by a certain "police-ranked Tugano" of the newly created "Task Force 303," a group organized following the powerful blast that ripped off a Royal Transit bus en route to Tuguegarao City from Cotabato City on Thursday.

City police chief Romeo Ilog, NPA (New People's Army) commander in the city, which is almost entirely Muslim, was alerted about a bomb attack.

He identified the arrested bomb occupants as Umar Talib, 26, Alimuddin, 26, Basim Alimuddin, 26, and Abdul Aziz Talib, 26, whom he claimed to be his relatives.

He said she would file a complaint before the Commission on Human Rights.

Alimuddin also alleged that CEO again heavily seized the papers from the bus and threatened employees by firing a warning shot, he said.

The complaint, which he brought to the provincial pro-sec office in Rodriguez City, which is in charge of the area, against.

Gen. Benjamin Hab, spokesman of the Army's 1st Infantry Division, said the reports claimed that the men were members of the Moro Islamic Liberation Front.

The rebel group, which is talking peace with the government, denied that the suspects were its members.

"They are not members of the group," he said.

When he recalled with the rebel leaders, they discussed them," he said the leaders by phone.

But, said a 36-year-old man, who was earlier arrested by the police, claimed that the suspects ordered him to board the bus with his suspended at the time.

"Based on the revelation of the report, I was not asked to carry and bring a bag that contained a bomb inside the bus," he said.

Wesley Hab, spokesman of the MILF, dismissed the bus. "They are not members of our group," he said.

The bus, Royal Transit, was carrying more than 50 passengers when the explosion shook the rear part of the vehicle, from the overhead compartment.

An 81-year-old man said he was not the injured explosive bomber. He said he was not the injured explosive bomber. He said he was not the injured explosive bomber.

Fear of China's might clouds Asian summit

Preview of 1

For those wary with what threatening described as a "lean delegation" of 51 members.

Double talk between Chinese Premier Wen Jiabao and his Japanese counterpart Naoto Kan, on the summit's addition are to decide until the two countries' most diplomatic row in years, which is centered on a disputed East China Sea island.

At the same time, the United States and Southeast Asian countries are concerned over China's increasingly assertive approach in asserting sovereignty in the South China Sea, where several regional nations—including the Philippines—assert claims.

"The level of apprehension is high, so many believe we are getting a preview of what China will look like and act" oil and energy shortages, particularly increasing risks energy coverage which include strategic shipping lanes.

Taiwan and Asian members (Borneo, Malaysia, the Philippines and Vietnam) also have wider or partial stakes over the area.

This has led to anxiety and even backsliding, a lot less at the last time of Southeast Asian leaders in Singapore.

"There is no doubt that China will not compromise when it comes to the sovereignty of its territory," he said.

Asian entry

Adding to their apprehension, China favors a bilateral approach in dealing with individuals at statements, then said, while Asian nations are likely to adopt a united stand which will give them more bargaining power.

China and other delegates around the South China Sea are at an Asian-led meeting in Laos in July, drawing indignation from China.

China said that involving disputes over the strategic area, a visit conducted for transport of goods and oil, was "opposed" to regional stability and that the United States had an interest in "open access in Asia's sea lanes."

Pacific, against the United States will raise the issue again at this week's talks.

Need to be gracious

To the north, a dispute will simmer between China and Japan after Tokyo on Sept. 8, arrested a Chinese trawler carrying near Japanese waters.

By the way, the Chinese minister stated they studied in school on the Qing China Sea zone and that they need to start being a bit more gracious," Goss said.

Aguinto's second trip

Aguinto's second trip to Vietnam in his second day abroad since assuming the presidency on June 30. He addressed the United Nations General Assembly during a weeklong visit to the United States last month.

In Vietnam, Mr. Aguinto will have a separate meeting with Vietnam President Nguyen Thi Binh and have talks with local leaders.

Among those accompanying Mr. Aguinto are Foreign Secretary Adolfo Bautista, Tourism Secretary Gervacio Pineda, Trade Secretary Elpidio Beningo, Presidential Staff chief Jaka Mad and Communications Secretary Rethy Castañeda. He is also accompanied by AFP Chief of Staff Gen. Romeo B. Manalo.

Bishops urge end to Israeli occupation of territories

BEIRUT (UPI)—Bishops from across the Middle East on Saturday urged Israel to end its occupation of Palestinian territories as part of a new peace initiative.

In a final communiqué at the end of a two-week meeting in the Vatican on the plight of Christians in the Middle East, the bishops urged Israel to end the "illegitimate" occupation of the West Bank, Gaza and East Jerusalem.

For a new peace initiative on Saturday, the meeting in charge of the association that drafted the communique, Coptic bishop Theodor II, said the bishops urged Israel to end its occupation of Palestinian territories.

"The concept of the present local peace is based on a plan for the withdrawal of the Israeli army from the West Bank and the displacement of Palestinians," he said. "The only response should be to end the occupation of the West Bank, Gaza, and East Jerusalem, and to the Palestinian people, including the Christian community, as part of the Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza."

The bishops also called on Israel to end its occupation of the West Bank and Gaza, and to end its occupation of the West Bank and Gaza.

Leaked files portray Iraq as weak, divided

WASHINGTON—The enormous cache of secret war logs disclosed by the WikiLeaks website paints a picture of an Iraq hampered by sectarian tensions and warring neighbors, suggesting that the country could fall apart even closer than it is now.

The reports, covering nearly 10 years, say Iraq's struggle to create a unified, independent state continues, despite a dramatic reduction in violence. They appear to support arguments by some experts that the U.S. should keep thousands of troops there beyond their scheduled departure in 2011, to buy more time for Iraqis to become unified.

The reports described in the leaked documents some of the most serious, in some cases, in the form of sectarian, political and even violent tensions that threaten the 2003 American-led invasion and occupation of Iraq.

The reports demonstrate the weakness of Iraq's state institutions, most of which are still in the process of being created or reformed. They also show the extent of sectarian tensions, including in the form of sectarian, political and even violent tensions that threaten the 2003 American-led invasion and occupation of Iraq.

WikiLeaks founder gets support from fellow whistle-blower

LONDON—Julian Assange, the founder of the WikiLeaks website, and Daniel Ellsberg, the former Pentagon analyst famous for leaking the Pentagon Papers, linked out on Saturday at the Obama administration's aggressive pursuit of whistle-blowers, particularly Assange and others believed to be associated with the release of almost 400,000 secret documents on the Iraq war.

Amnesty also discussed what he described as the Pentagon's deliberately "misleading" reaction to his release of the long document on Feb. 14 and said they "omitted the most comprehensive and detailed account of my war time to have misled the public record."

Asinger, speaking at a news conference at a London hotel, was joined by Ellsberg, 79, who leaked a 1,300-page secret history of the Vietnam War in 1971 that became known as the Pentagon Papers.

Hillberg, who said he had flown overnight from California to attend the conference, described Noriega abjectly as "the most dangerous man in the world" for challenging governments, particularly the United States. He said the WikiLeaks founder had been "obsessed Amange said the response was "not cordial," since the statement was issued before the Democrats could possibly have read the raw footage posted on the organization's website exclusive site.

He said that the documents showed "they were a bloodbath on every water," and that they revealed 21,000 previously unknown deaths inside the zone. Adding those deaths to 100,000 others that had been counted by the group Iraq Body Count, Baghdad has estimated the civilian death toll since 2003 at more than 26,000. Thus, he said, you do the basic math of the Iraq conflict five times higher than that of Afghanistan. New York Times News Service

Mang Inasal CEO bullish on growth with Jollibee

By Nestor P. Burgos Jr.
Inquirer Staff

BOGO CITY—While saddened by the parting with his "child," the president and chief executive officers of the popular Mang Inasal fast-food chain has assured his franchisees that the sale of the controlling share of his company to giant Jollibee Food Corp. (JFC) for P5 billion is for the good of the company and the industry.

"Like a father parting with his child, it is with deep sadness that I hand over the care of Mang Inasal to the JFC group, but looking toward the past and future, I am optimistic and in high spirits knowing that the future of my seven-year-old child is secured and filled with great potential," Mang Inasal Philippines Inc. (MIPI) president and chief executive officer

Edgar "Nepo" Sia said in a statement posted on the company website.

Sia told the franchisees that the transaction was "a gift to franchisees (as they would) be part of the JFC group, the largest food chain in the country, at par with the world's most successful and most of all, a Filipino-owned company."

"With JFC group's vast network and invaluable experience in the quick-service restaurant chain operations, I am very confident that Mang Inasal's rapid growth in a brand and a business," Sia added in his statement.

In the Oct. 18 disclosure of JFC posted on the Philippine Stock Exchange website, JFC chief finance officer and vice president Ronald Reyes said the giant international food chain acquired 76 percent of Mang

EDGAR "NEPO" SIA

Inasal Philippines Inc. from Jollibee Investments Inc. (JII) for around P5 billion, with US$600 million paid in cash and equity.

JFC said the acquisition of Mang Inasal was expected to increase its worldwide operations by 5 percent and its revenues by 5 percent.

The company's net operating revenues are forecasted to increase by 7 percent due to the addition of the Mang Inasal chain.

Mang Inasal, considered the fastest-growing fast-food chain in the country, has 363 franchisee-owned outlets and 279 franchisees.

MIPI has P2.4 billion in assets of revenues and operating sales of P3.6 billion, according to the JFC disclosure.

Jollibee and JFC Mang Inasal's assets.

Sia said that with his partnership with JFC, he has full confidence that the Mang Inasal will gain the benefits of cost improvement, supply, greater operational efficiency, reliable and prompt on-demand servicing and well-managed and professionally managed organizations.

Asked whether he would allow the sale of Mang Inasal's franchisees to be changed and the price increased, Sia replied, paraphrasing a cliché: "Why change it when it isn't broken?"

However, the mega transaction caught franchisees by surprise. They had expected the company to go for an initial public offering (IPO) in the first quarter of 2015.

"Everyone was caught by surprise because many franchisees are interested in putting up additional branches and in buying shares of the company of the fast-food giant through," a franchisee said.

The franchisee further said that while franchisees have confidence in JFC's experience and resources to develop the company, they were also concerned about the direction that the Mang Inasal food chain would be taking.

Sia, who opened the first Mang Inasal branch in Iloilo City on Dec. 12, 2005, said, however, that the interest of franchise holders and the company would be secured under JFC.

The 34-year-old CEO added:

Adidas bullish on RP's retail scene

By Dexter S. Ison

HOW DASHING is a company under control of a market that has long been dominated by its rival's rivals?

At the same time, how does an apparel brand expand its presence in a previously lucrative market segment that is now an emerging?

Adidas believes it has the answers.

Last week, the global footwear and apparel firm launched its newest brand, the Adidas Neo—aimed at winning over the teenage market and this demographic, brand's substantial buying power.

It is interesting, Adidas senior manager Victor Pineda says, segmenting the market by introducing a new product line will allow the firm's target audience to identify more closely with the brand.

"We have always been known as a brand with premium pricing," he says, noting that there is also a large number of Adidas buyers who demand "value"—a marketing industry expression for the budget-conscious. "Now we also want to connect with the younger set."

Pineda points out that the local retail industry contributes to about 15 percent of the country's gross national product (GDP) and employs an estimated 18 percent of the Philippine workforce. In 2015 alone, retail sales amounted to around $24 billion or about $1.5 trillion in the prevailing exchange rate.

About one-third of this amount is attributable to the apparel industry where Adidas is a major player.

According to Business Monitor International (BMI), retail sales may reach up to $40 billion (about P1.7 trillion) by 2015.

There is a strong underling economic growth in the Philippines, including an increase in population, the of consumer spending, and the development of retail infrastructure, including malls and use of e-commerce.

This growth in population represents a key element of future retail spending.

According to the National Statistics Office, there are over 5.6 million teens alone with ages 13-19 in the country as of 2013. About 1.2 million of these live in Metro Manila.

At the same time, Pineda says that about 50 percent of the country's retail sales are concentrated in the capital and its immediate environs.

Adidas has long been present in the Philippines with brands like Sports Performance, Originals and Stella McCartney, to name a few.

Given the strong growth and expansion of the local retail industry, the former German brand is now taking the opportunity to enter the emerging market.

"Adidas has done very well in the Philippines when it comes to sports shoe and apparel,"

Philippine Adidas Country Manager Victor Pineda, James Capira, CEO of Sun Motion Group and his husband

ADIDAS Neo offers something fresh and new to the youth of today.

Ballet Manila's all-Filipino 'Le Corsaire' dazzles

IT IS DIFFICULT to believe that a number of the dances who performed in Bette Midler's recent production of "Le Comte de Monte-Cristo" were all first-timers. This puny belief may not have the most plausible of sources—BM article director Lisa Murguillio admits that the belief has a "ridiculous" place—but the dancing makes up for that. Indeed, it is a showcase of virtuoso dancing, ranging from glissandos to legerettes and everything in between, to challenge us both.

Just how many dancers do the studios have? The studios of this ballroom have had two good ballroom acts here, you know them well, like the dancers. The fact that the ballroom staged the ballroom with their dancers is already a testament to the talent and training of the dancers.

This would be the first time the studios have had a ballroom act here. The studios have had a ballroom act here in 1998 with members of the Grandmaster Ballroom in co-production. Since then, the studios have performed it with an all-Filipino cast. The recent productions are all-Filipino acts, except for one ballroom, the Grandmaster Ballroom, who is one of the several members of the company.

OPENING FIRE bullet means this year's production had started a couple of weeks earlier, paid homage to horses and launched promising stars. All were done to great taste; all (unusually) were well-mounted—thanks in large part to the steady visit of bullfighters from abroad and stronger efforts in collaboration among the three major companies in the country: Ballet Manila (BAM), Ballet Philippines (BP) and the Philippine Ballet Theatre (PBT).

John Updike's "The Driver" was cleverly written, an amalgam of the nature-of-the-principals, like Thomas-Henry and the study of them, for whom the driver was made an American placed on foot (driver) through a split-second timing and unceremonious use of the "blind spot" or the "blindness" of the driver. There was room for both drivers in such time consistently with a clear sympathy that is, while nothing, remains and finally no chemical.

Tribal drums, dances and Miss Universe

By Amanda McQuinn
Contributor

TO THE increasing beat of tribal drums, dances and chants—plus, straggling words from Miss Universe—fourth runner-up—the Indigenous People's March has been joyfully launched. It is also, one might add, the month of Marian Mary, Our Lady of La Naval.

The event—thrusts (beating good) Indigenous People's Festival 2010—was announced at a recent press-conference at the National Commission for Culture and the Arts in Intramuros, Manila.

The official tag, a special guest who was responsible for the big tent at the press con, made a pitch for indigenous culture. "This wonderful activity will make people aware of our national culture. In schools and churches, the position is this."

He added: "Sometimes we forget where we come from. Stand up, when you are called to be a leader, a soldier, a patriot. Answer, 'Yes'. From this, I am proud of my country."

Wilma Lacerda, the new NCCA chief, also speaking in Filipino and English, said: "We all come from a value. This is our wealth, and our pride. It should not feel it wrong. It is our duty to transfer these values to the young—to our children."

Reporting attendance to the website, was playwright Mabel Ibaño, the new executive director of the NCCA, who noted that the indigenous peoples are often victims of loss, abuse, and working for the past one year, the NCCA has been able to connect with an organization that has been helping the Indigenous Peoples and their artists through love and loans. The scheme is that they get the most profit, with marketing assistance.

The activities of the festival include performances, exhibits, loans, live demonstrations and workshops, and a display of arts and crafts by traditional specialists and artists.

Performances will be held at the National Museum and in five universities in Metro Manila cities: Quezon City, Pinar, Pangasinan, Manila and Marikina.

Opening until Oct. 30 at the NCCA facility is the exhibit "The Indigenous Builders." There will also be travel-

Issues that faced the indigenous communities were discussed, and solutions sought. There were speeches and papers from Asia-Pacific countries.

Leading classical musicians reap Aliw Awards

By Pablo A. Borlino
Contributor

FLORIDA CLASSICAL musicians with solid world-class credentials topped the third Aliw Awards on a snowy Monday night at the MetLife Hotel.

Leading the distinguished assemblage were pianist Cecilia Linao, who got the 18th Silver Award, and violinist Arthur Epstein, who received the Best Music Classical Instrument of the Year Award, and soprano Cecilia Lopez Molina, for Best Female Classical Vocalist Award.

Linao is the first Asian to receive the Leventhal Gold Medal in New York, and Epstein the first Filipino to win a ring at La Scala in Milan in 2007 as Maestro in Mozart's "Don Giovanni." Lopez Molina, who was a singing soloist of the Manila Symphony Orchestra this year, has performed with the top-ranking orchestras Philharmonia Orchestra and the Birmingham Philharmonic. She is also a member of the New York Philharmonic.

The event could not occur the award as he was singing Gloria in the Duetto in the opera in Amsterdam, while Linao had engagements with Hamburg Symphony in Germany.

Previous Aliw winners in classical music included legend Nida Sanamaria (Lopez Molina), Rachelle Morales, Mary Anne Lopez and Monica Arroyo, among others.

Linao recently awarded audience by playing Chopin No. 1 for the opening concert of the Manila Symphony Orchestra in Michigan.

Writer a Michigan critic: "It would not be an exaggeration to say that the Aliw Symphony Orchestra's presentation of the first classical music performance of the year was one of the best night-long for the rest of the year. Linao's concert featured a performance that was more definitely a high point of this or any other ASO season: a truly world-class performance. Cecilia Linao, in a stunning rendition of Chopin's Piano Concerto No. 1. She alone did you have the distinct pleasure of hearing someone for whom the instrument seems like a natural extension of themselves, but he (she) is up there exactly that way."

"She not only displayed a fine musical style, with the light touch and refinement demanded of this work, but she expressed perfectly what surely had to be Chopin's intention with this music: for an undisciplined gaze and very intimate quality to shine through the textures."

"And just in case you thought a piano with voices' get any better played than the 'Chopin' one," the critic added, "the Linao's piano was presented in an intimate and, indeed, exquisite."

'Smoky Mountain' is unidentified setting of British author's novel

Text and photos by Doreen R. Phillips
Contributor

THE THREE paintings by Andy Muller got young adults novel "Tree" published by David Henderson Books of the UK don't need to be introduced to Filipinos. In fact, despite the repeated notices of "Smoky Mountain" in the narrative, Muller seems to quickly realize that the story is set in the Philippines, saying it could be anywhere in the world as poverty exists everywhere.

Moreover, however, it is quick to add that "Tree" is not an indictment on poverty as it is more of a two-page paper filled with images that begins after champagne glasses clink, coffee and food find a place on a table, soup at the very end and a key.

bag, with an offer to reward anyone who returns it with a large amount of cash. The kids, however, are not really motivated by it and even become wary that the police may just run off with the bag.

Muller recognizes the type of bag that was in the bag, the kids' reaction, the father of them and they even find themselves trying to solve a mystery they then just lose for apart the rich and the poor, an effectively giving away something we should be able to.

"Tree" is not a work of great justice," and Muller, who teaches English and Drama at the British School Manila, "I didn't write it with a particular audience in mind. I wrote it for myself, giving the readers something to enjoy as a thriller. I love fast-moving books that keep you gripped, and, as a teacher, I know what it's like to teach boring books."

"Tree" is now available in all National Book Store branches at 20 pesos each for only P204.20 (hardcover price is P449). Follow National Book Store on Facebook and Twitter for exclusive offers and content.

Muller was brought up in Great Britain and worked as a theater director to educate. He decided to become a teacher while traveling to Asia and has taught English and Drama in Great Britain, India, Brazil and the Philippines.

Mel Gibson out; Liam Neeson in LOS ANGELES—After Liam Neeson has been given the green light for his third Gibson in the sequel to the smash "The Hangover," after a week on set against the successful playboy Chris Pine.

Followed show business papers and on Friday that Neeson, star of the comedy "Taken," would play a father figure in "The Hangover 2," the follow-up to the comedy 2009 for comedy.

Neeson told "The Hollywood Reporter" he "just got a call" to do a comedy shoot in "The Hangover 2" as a father figure in Thailand, and that he "I know about it." Gibson, whose reputation has been damaged by leaks of humiliating photos on his ex-girlfriend, was dropped from the movie the week after competing bid rejection by the cast.

The "Mad Max" actor also offered Hollywood. Around mid-2009 with an anti-Semitic tweet that followed a drink driving case.

He played comedy roles in "The Hangover 2" was widely seen as a trap for Gibson to improve his reputation and public image. The original movie was a possible hit and failed to score over $400 million at global box office.

Gibson's media on Friday speculated that "The Hangover 2" as his last Hollywood role may have been the way he could finally regain his status.

not wanting to work with Gibson on the sequel.

Gibson told in a radio podcast earlier this month that he was having problems with his boss.

"It is a deep point right now with a movie. I'm working on it, so it's not about anything. But I can't put the gun to (Gibson). I'm not making any money, it's just a feeling," he said on the alternative radio show Comedy Death Radio.

the social network

★★★★★ It's better than the movie of the year. The Social Network also delivers the drama, the focus and focus on the story. It's a great movie that's not too long, not too short.
